County poker machine ban thrown out

MADISON COUNTY
A Countywide ban on video poker machines in Madison County was shot down by a judge Priday.
In a six-page ruling, Madison County Associate Judge Lewis Mallott deemed the state's attorney's gambling protocol "legally deficient."

The protocol—a series of guidelines for law enforcement that included the ban—was the subject of a lawsuit filed against State's Attorney Bill Haine by Bojac's Inc., a Wood River tavern that voluntarily removed a video poker achine last year in the wake of Haine's crackdown on the devices.

Bojac's owner, James Rôbert "Bob" Oller, said his machine was used for amusement only, not gambling—a point echoed

In his order, Mallott complimented Haine's effort to tackle gambling, but he said the protocol was incomplete.

Charges, countercharges fly in Pontoon Beach elections

By Scott Cousins Staff writer

Objections to a candidate's petitions and questions about missing forms have heated up election races in Pontoon Beach.

PONTOON ON FIGAR, Police Chief Michael Crouch filed two objections targeting mayoral candidate Jim Denham — a former captain and Village Clerk Mary Rowden.

The day before, a police repart was filled out by Trustee Randy Presawood, also running for mayor, claiming that some election documents were apparently missing from those filed with the Madison County Clerk's office.

Madison.

The bridge was closed after the completion of the new Interstate 270 Chain of Rocks Bridge.

In subsequent years, the bridge was a hot spot for partyers, was used in the filming of "Escape from New York" and was the scene of a double murder, which forced the city of Madison to close access to the bridge.

More recently, Trailnet leased the bridge from the city, and started work on its rehabilitation.

Eventually it will be part of a much larger trail project— the Confluence Greenway— with integrated bicycle trails from Alton to St. Louis and connections to the Vadalabene Trail up the Great River Road and the Katy Trail along the Missouri River.

When stock market takes tumble, bond market often flies higher

Same principle works in reverse, as well

To put it midly, 1998 was an eventful year for investors.
The stock market continued first six months, then stumbled. By the end of August, all of its gains for the year had been more than when the stumbled of the year had been more than the work of the work of the work of the work of the mutual fund market as well. Some stock mutual funds year, but year formed well.
This was not surprising. In Performed well.

This was not surprising. In fifne out of the 10 years since 1930 in which equities experienced negative results, intermediate-term Treasury securities earned positive returns.

When stocks go down, bonds gerneally go up. This felationship between equity and debt holds true not only in the United States, but also in foreign markets. "Since 1990, Japan's Nikkei

Dow index of stocks has fallen about 765 percent. In the same period,an index of Japanese bonds has risen about 90 percent.

However, over the long term, stocks have consistently outperformed bonds in a total return. In the past 25 years, Average has risen more than 2,500 percent — an annual average of about 14 percent. These long-term gains were not without interruption. One study of that period showed that in 112 of those 300 months

That's where bonds come in.
In fact, as global financial markets become more uncertain, top-rated government and corporate bonds become even more important.

So, should you invest in stocks or bonds?

The answer is, both.

When one segment of a portfolio experiences troubled waters, the other serves as a safe harbor. It's called diversification.

Drawing blood

Sometimes fairy tales do not come true, but there is no reason for that to happen when it comes to crocheting.

Maybe it is an admiration for the lacy stitches obvious in tablecloths, bedspreads and edgings, but the effort to crochet never happened. Maybe someone tried it as a loving, worthwhile task, but doing it with thread turned into a chore.

Learn how to crochet Frozen meatballs get meal off to quick roll

A trio of cooked, Italian-seasoned meatballs tucked in the freezer could be the start of something big when it comes to a quick dinner, according to testers. The brands of Armour ($2.59 for 18 ounces, 35 meatballs), Fazio's ($2.79 for 15 ounces, 15 meatballs) and Rosina ($2.99 for 16 ounces, 17 meatballs) were heated in a microwave oven. Packages also gave directions for heating in a conventional oven or on a stovetop. One tester was exuberant about the product before she sampled individual

One tester was exuberant about the product before she sampled individual varieties.
"There are so many ways to fix these delicious meatballs, I'm not sure where to begin. I know my mother uses these in her special pasta sauce to bring out the flavor. They're a great alternative next to homemade. I give them five stars," she said.

she said.

The larger Rosina and Fazio meat-balls impressed testers because of their likeness to homemade meatballs. The smaller Armour meatballs offered more smaller Armour meatballs offered more pieces for the fat and calories.

Three Fazio's meatballs have 200 calories and 14 grams fat, 3 Rosina's have 250 calories and 19 grams fat, while 6 Armour meatballs are listed on the label with 250 calories and 20 grams fat. Several testers gauged the Armour meatballs, by their size and lighter color, to be the only ones with soy for filler. However, the Rosina brand includes it, too.

However, the Rosina brand includes it, too.

"The bigger meatballs come from the package looking liked cooked meatballs, the Armour meatballs are decent-sized, but have a redder hue. The Fazio's have grease clinging to them," a tester said.

Another added, "I can see where these could become a habit. The flavors are mild enough to be meant to mesh with spaghetti sauce.

She called the seasoning nothing that "knocks you over," so the sauce would round out their flavor. She likened them to meat that comes in a meatball sandwich at a sub sandwich shop.

Although most tasters preferred the bigger meatballs, preferences were divided. One who liked the Rosita brand best for the style of Italian meatball spice still complimented all three.
"Fazio's is more greasy. However, that's good to bring out the flavor of special pasta sauces. Armour is different, from the others with more of a sweet.
Sicilan flavor. The smaller size would be good for party favors," she said.
A taster liked the appearance of the Rosina meatballs with appealing brown color and grill marks. She liked its flavor best, too, with a beety base. Another called it a "browner" taste.
A tester preferred Fazio's for its meat flavor and spiciness, which she found held up better under a dip in pasta sauce and a sprinkle of parmesan cheese.
Fazio's meatballs had more texture.
One thought it made them seem more homemade for using real ingredients, like onion and seasonings, while another felt they were "gristly."

Texture affected another taster.
The texture was not as good as freshly made meatballs. However, persons who always eat packaged food or dinners probasbly would not notice," she said.

A tester who liked the Armour brand best was impressed by the quality of the meat. Another tester who previously used Armour meatballs, which also come without Italian seasoning, was surprised at the style differences between brands. "The price variation wouldn't matter, because they would be used different ways — in sauce with spaghetti, hot in a bowl with toothpicks as appetizers, on a bun with sauce and cheese as a meatball sandwich," she said.

The convenience of microwaving precooked meatballs justified keeping them in her freezer for anyone in her family to use.

Vegetarian eating habit spreading like wildfire

Edges Edwardsville for title

"They are wrestling tough."
Granite City coach Mike Grainate Said. "Sometimes you run out of things to say about kids like that because they are so consistent. But these tournaments for kids like that are sometimes tough because tournament and you can't overlook this. You have to keep it in focus, keep things in front of you, and so far they've done that. I'm really happy with them." Paul Johnson continued his torrid streak, taking the crown at 125 pounds by pinning Jerseyville's Steve Walsh at 1:21 in the finals.

"I'm pretty happy with what I did here today," Johnson said. "I hope to go on to the next tournament, sectionals, and hopefully place first again. I want to keep it going. If you thinks he's going to set you down then you might get scared of them. You don't get scared of them, you just keep going after them with the same intensity over and you'll beat the guy. I just want to keep my endurance up, start practicing harder, get a harder workout in, maybe build up some more stamina."

Freshman Jim Treakle (140 pounds) lost a hard fought close match to Jerseyulie's Dusty VanHoose in the semifinals and was pinned by semifinals and was pinned by the her bird-place match. Treakle's classmate, Tom Tedesco, showed some real moxie, staying low against Edwardsville's Caleb Robinson a 4-3 win in the semifinals. Tedesco lost the final 7-1 to Coolidge and Grigsby got an up-close-and-personal look at The Garage recently. The Braves pounded their cross-town rival 47-21 when the two faced off Jan. 29 at Granite City High School's gym.

Grante City High School's gym.

"I was really happy with the way we wrestled." Coolidge coach Scott Simon said. "It looks good for Granite City because we had two schools with good atties. Been real happy because we have a lot of new athletes and they have really improved. They are doing what I want them to not hem mat. We have kind of a young team, a lot of seventh-graders and eighth-graders in their first year of wrestling." Coolidge dominated the lower weight classes, winning every match from 79 pounds through 128 pounds.

CHS squanders 7-point halftime cushion

After suffering its first-ever defeat at Gym A Priday in an emotional loss to East St. Louis, EMATERIAL
BOYS BASKETBALL
jerking the Tigers out of a second-quarter funk, Edwardsville atormed back from a seven-point halftime deficit to dispatch Cahokia 65-57
Saturday night at Gym A.
Cahokia dropped to 3-16, leaving coach Roscoe Dowell wondering just what it will take to get his team a break.

"I've got one thing to say. One foul in the second half. One foul," Dowell said of the single foul called on the Tigers after halftime. "Edwardsville's got a heck of a team. They played well. But tonight, I thought we flat outplayed them... One foul in a half — something's got to be done.

something's got to be done.

"I thought his kids were prepared to play and I thought our kids were prepared to play. And I thought our kids were prepared to play. And I thought we outplayed then."

Both teams came out firing early, with Lytle scoring 10 points, guard Travis Evans scoring five and Terrance Allen providing a spark off two and Terrance Allen providing a spark off two ka 21-17 lead after one quarter.

But the Tigers crumbled at the offensive end in the second quarter. Edwardsville was 0 for 12 from the field and 7 for 14 from the foul line quarter-opening run to spark a surge that ended with Cahokia up 35-28 at halftime.

"It thought we executed well on offense in the first half in our quarter-court," Edwardsville coach Mike Waldo said. "We just had trouble making perimeter shots."

The Tigers' string of consective misfrings from the first half was to be suffered to the first half. The tigers' because the substantial was a second to the first half. It would be substantial to the first half. It would be substantial to the first half. It would be substantial to the game at 37-37 with 5:31 left in the third quarter. One minute later, Doug Shapiro hit a trey to give Edwardsville its first Lytle, who was the lone Tiger immune to a first-half shooting drought, lit up the Comanches for 18 points in the second half. The 6-foot-10 senior finished with a season-high 30 points, 14 rebounds and six blocked shots with the substantial than the substantial first had a heck of a game," Dowell said of Lytle. "He's a heck of a player. You can't take nothing from him. We won't have to see him no more after this year.

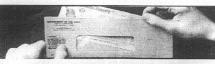

Lytle made 9 of 10 shots in the second half on an inpressive array of hooks, short jumpers and layins.

"At halftime, we just talked about how we

"At halftime, we just talked about how we needed to execute better and concentrate more on the task at hand," Lytle said. "We came ou really well in the second half, pushed the ball upcourt and got some good looks inside. And then Turner and Doug hit some big 3's for us."

Both teams shot 47 percent (25 of 53) from the field. But the Tigers could muster just a 3-for-19 night from 3-point range and a 12 of 25 effort from the foul line.

DeMarcus Brown, a 6-6 senior, led Cahokia with 14 points.

NURSERY & CRAFTS Where Beautiful Things Begin

t's still a little early to do much in the way of gardening. But it's not totally out of the picture. Here are a few more handy bits of information that you could use during the month of February.

Start broccoli, Brussels sprouts and cabbage now for early planting.

 Most indoor flowering plants will retain their lowers longer if room temperatures are kept on the low side, around 55°F or so, especially at night.

 Dull, dusty leaves on houseplants can ruin not only their appearance, but their health as well. Wipe the leaves of large-leaved plants with a clean, moist, soft cloth. Place small-leaved plants under a gentle shower Gently dust African vlotets and other. hairy-leaved plants with a delicate camel-hair brush.

If you haven't already done so, remove any fallen leaves, fruit and other debris from the garden.

Seeds of ageratum, - seeds or ageratum, begonia, coleus, impatiens, petunia, salvia and snapdragon will germinate better when exposed to light. When sowing these seeds, don't cover them with soil.

• If your winter landscape seems "tired" or generally lacks interest, drive around and check out those in other neighborhoods. You'll probably come up with some great ideas. Many plants have attractive winter bark, texture, shape or color and can be planted this year for added interest next winter.

• If you're looking for a great Valentine's Day gift, a flowering houseplant would surely please that special someone in your

Don't forget to visit
 Frank's seed racks. The selection's great, and now's a good time to start them indoors.

Keep an eye on your bird feeder, and discard any feed that's wet or moldy.
 Replace it with fresh seed and the birds will be most grateful. Birds flocking around your feeder have a knack of cheering up even the most drab of days.

· Store bird feed in a tightly Store bird feed in a tightly closed container to keep it fresh. And make sure you store it outdoors; bird feed should never be kept inside. When your supply runs low, more is as near as the nearest Frank's.

· Review last season's gardening successes and failures and keep them in mind when making plans for the upcoming season.

A partment dwellers, don't feel left out! You can also grow your own vegetables, even if you don't have the space. Many varieties of beets, broccoli, carrots, cabbage, lettuce, radishes and tomatoes are perfect candidates for container gardening. Start planning a container garden now. Many items can be used for containers.

 Want to provide more humidity for your houseplants? A great way is to create a pebble tray. Fill a tray or saucer with a layer of pebbles and add layer of peobles and add just enough water so as not to cover them. The evaporating water will increase the humidity around the plants.

If the entire house seems too dry, check the humidifier on your furnace and adjust it accordingly.

Remember to rotate your Remember to rotate you houseplants one quarter turn ever time you water them. This will provide more even distribution of light, encouraging nice, even growth.

Once a manufacturer has developed a strong reputation for cuality and value, styling may not be so important. Example: The millions of middle-class Honda Accords, Toyota Camrys and Ford Escorts that have been sold in recent years. But if your brand doesn't have a Honda-like reputation and you're bringing a new vehicle to the most competitive market ever seen, why bother producing some undifferentiated blob that looks like its design fell out of the Honda Dumpster in 1988?
Thankfully, there are signs of change.

that looks like its design fell out of the Honda Dumpster in 1888?

Thankfully, there are signs of change. A few companies are doing great jobs of stretching the design envelope and producing cars pleasing to the eye. Mercedes-Benz and BMW have strong reputations for engineering and quality, but still make strong reputations for engineering and quality, but still make and just as before World War II, Ford and Chrysler are really pushing the limits of styling forward with their production cars and prototypes. Chrysler has proved trucks can look neat, too. If the new Mercury Cougar looks a little weird, well, at least Ford tried, and it doesn't look like every other potato turned out some very have has discarded the box look and turned out some very have an assume that attractive design combines familiar themes with new twists. The new Beetle probably would sell out if it didn't even have an engine, and the new Audi TT coupe looks like a 1930s sports car timewarped to the 21st century. Ford-has unveiled a stunning profunder that the charge of its 1955 Thunderbird with the compositions the class of its 1955 Thunderbird with the compositions the class of its 1955 Thunderbird with the composition the class of its 1955 Car designers of the world. Please keep up the good work and continue to battle to get your art onto the road. Many of us do notice.

Odyssey elevates minivan function to a new level

Even though there's a groundswell of popularity for sport-stillity vehicles (SUVs). I think minivans are still one of the most practical vehicles for general purpose use.

Take Honda's all-new Odyssey, for example. It has all the creature comforts read the control of the most probability of the still the creature comforts leather upholstery), performance and handling equal to, or in some cases better than, most popular family four-doors. Yet it still can swallow a family of five and enough gear for a two-week vacation and rear air conditioning units with a micron air filter, nine cup holders, crush of the control of the control the previous Odyssey, which really was more like a tall car than a minivan, it is 6,7 inches wider and I inches longer. Its 5 of established minivans such as the Dodge Caravan and Ford Windstar. This Honda has numerous pluses, such as a vigorous 3.5-liter V-6 engine; a low center of gravity for cornering without can be considered to the constant of the constant of vans so popular in the first place, and Honda's décision to go with a folding third seat is brilliant. Honda studied the competition and then tried to go them one better. The 210 horsepower is the most in its class and the power band for strong off-the-line response without sacrificing high-speed passing power. The engine is mounted on an aluminum subframe, and rubber insulation of the sacrificing high-speed passing power.
